

Martin Hogan describes it, for those who have faith in God without having seen him.

Saint Thomas needed a bit of convincing. He missed out on the first appearance of the Risen Jesus after the resurrection. Perhaps he was disappointed not to have shared in the incredible story being told by the other apostles and needed further proof. In doing so, he speaks for many believers down through the centuries, who have had doubts about their faith and needed extra assurance. We then have Saint Thomas's remarkable profession of faith when he does encounter the Risen Jesus the words of which have found their way into one of the memorial acclamations following the consecration at mass: "My Lord and My God."

Although not recorded directly in the Gospels many Saints have written about how the Risen Jesus appeared to Our Lady after his resurrection. St Teresa of Avila tells us in one of her visions of Christ: The Lord said to her, "On my resurrection I went to Our Lady who was in great need.... and I stayed long with her for she was in very great need of consolation".

Saint Vincent Ferrer, the Spanish Dominican, says: Jesus' first visit was to the Virgin Mary, His Mother, is expressly taught by St. Ambrose, where he says: 'Mary saw the Resurrection of Christ, and she was the first to see it.' Saint Vincent goes on to say: "Mary had suffered more than anyone else in the Passion of Her Son. He, therefore, was sure to give her consolation in preference to all others...Mary had no doubt as to Her Son's rising again on the third day, for he had said that it should be so."

In this context, we are reminded of the words of the ancient Christian prayer the Regina Coeli which celebrates the joy of Our Lady at the resurrection:

*"Queen of Heaven, rejoice, alleluia.
For He whom you did merit to bear, alleluia.
Has risen, as he said, alleluia.
Pray for us to God, alleluia."*

As we celebrate the fifty days of this Easter Season which brings us to Pentecost on Sunday June 9th, may we all share Our Lady's joy at the resurrection so beautifully expressed in this prayer. Gerard Reilly

"May all the baptised who have received the anointing of Christ, priest, prophet and king, rediscover the fervour of their beginning, relive the extraordinary grace they once received by becoming children of God."

Quoting the words of St Francis of Assisi, Archbishop Aupetit, encouraged all Catholics working together to "rebuild our church."

Many of you will recall the photograph of the golden cross standing defiantly above the altar in the fire damaged Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris.

During this Easter season, it has become a powerful symbol of the resurrection.

On Holy Thursday Archbishop Michel Aupetit of Paris said the following:

"We will rebuild the cathedral, we could speak in these Easter times of a certain resurrection."

"But we must also raise the Church. May all the baptised who have received the anointing of Christ, priest, prophet and king, rediscover the fervour of their beginning, relive the extraordinary grace they once received by becoming children of God."

In times of challenge and difficulty, it is sometimes the people who are more in the background who play very important roles. It can be the quiet, effective people who can get things done. As we reflect on the life, death and resurrection of Jesus this Easter, let us remember that it is also our mission in the church today to get things done.

As Saint Vincent de Paul said: "do what good lies at your hands."

In today's Gospel, Jesus gives us his final beatitude: "Blessed are those who have not seen but yet believe."

Jesus is telling us that there is a "greater blessedness", as Father
